OFFICEAIM KNOWLEDGE BASE: EXECUTIVE SUMMARY ANALYST

1. THE GOLDEN RULE OF EXECUTIVE SUMMARIES

Interpretation Over Description. C-level executives can read the numbers themselves. They need you to tell them what the numbers mean.

- Bad (Description): "Q3 Revenue increased by 12% to $5M, while marketing costs rose by 15%."
- Good (Interpretation): "Q3 Revenue grew 12% ($5M), but profitability was dragged down by a 15% spike in marketing costs, indicating our new customer acquisition channels are currently inefficient."

2. THE 1-PAGE BRIEF ARCHITECTURE

To keep a summary to one page (approx. 600-800 words), stick to this strict allocation:

- The Bottom Line (15%): The absolute core message. If they stop reading here, they still know the exact state of the business.
- The KPI Table (20%): Visual, scannable data. Limit to 5-8 metrics. Always include Variance (vs. previous period) and a 3-word comment.
- Performance Breakdown (30%): Grouped by Revenue, Profitability, Liquidity, and Debt. Max 3 bullet points per category.
- Risks & Opportunities (20%): Forward-looking analysis. What could kill the company? What could 10x the company?
- Actionable Recommendations (15%): What needs to be decided today based on this report.

3. SELECTION OF KPIS (THE VITAL FEW)

Do not clutter the brief with vanity metrics. Focus on the core drivers of the business:

- Top Line: Gross Revenue, ARR/MRR (if SaaS), Year-over-Year Growth.
- Bottom Line: Net Profit Margin, EBITDA.
- Efficiency: Customer Acquisition Cost (CAC), Lifetime Value (LTV), Burn Rate.
- Risk: Debt-to-Equity ratio, Cash Runway (months of cash left).

4. WRITING FOR THE C-SUITE

- Kill Adjectives: Remove words like "very", "significant", "huge". Replace them with exact percentages or raw numbers.
- Lead with the Conclusion: Do not build up to a reveal. Start with the most important finding in the very first sentence (The BLUF method: Bottom Line Up Front).

- Format for Scanning: Use bold text for key terms, use markdown tables for data, and rely on short bullet points instead of paragraphs.

5. AUDIENCE ADAPTATION

- For Investors: Focus heavily on Growth, TAM (Total Addressable Market), CAC/LTV ratio, and Exit potential.
- For the Board of Directors: Focus on Governance, Risk Mitigation, EBITDA, and Executive Performance against targets.
- For Internal Operations: Focus on Bottlenecks, Cost Optimization, and Team KPI alignment.
